

LINDBERGH'S SEARCH LEADS TO PHILA. TODAY

COLONEL AND WIFE ANXIOUSLY WAIT WITH FAITH IN THEIR RADIO PLEAS; FAKE LEADS CONTINUE TO BE RECEIVED

Stricter Rules in Force Regarding Gathering of Cars Near Entrance to Estate — Machines Kept Moving to Leave Way for Communication

Two leads which New Jersey State Police termed "red hot" swung the search for the kidnapers of the son of Colonel and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh toward Philadelphia today.

Officials termed the tips confidential and all information concerning them was bluntly refused.

Search for a woman with a police record was known, however, to be on hand in Philadelphia today. She is said to be Mary Rogers, 29, from whom a Chicago private detective is alleged to have recovered a baby in 1930.

The Rogers woman also is known as Charlotta Dickinson and Charlotte Dickenson, police say.

Chicago police have been asked by Captain J. J. Lamb of the New Jersey State Police to furnish him with all information concerning the Rogers woman, police here revealed.

Philadelphia police are ignorant of what evidence has been uncovered, if any, to link Mary Rogers with the baby theft.

An earlier request from the New Jersey State Police stated police had renewed their search of all hotels and rooming houses. No reason for the request was given. The message came from Colonel Schwartzkopf, superintendent of the New Jersey State Police at Trenton. It read: "Police of Philadelphia, Camden and Atlantic City are requested to make a check on all second class hotels for the Lindbergh baby. This request comes from Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh."

The request lent new impetus to the search.

HOPEWELL, N. J., Mar. 4.—Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh today put his faith upon the element through which he had many times flown with his bride and wife—hand-in-hand.

The two waited for their radio plea to the kidnapers of their baby to bring them something on which they might hope for the return of their lost one.

Mr. and Mrs. Lindbergh not only wish, but hope, that whoever is in possession of their little child, will make every effort to communicate with them.

This is the heartfelt message which was broadcast like a thousand airplanes out into the ether by the great national radio broadcasting systems. So, the Lindberghs waited.

Not long after the plea was made over the radio for the kidnapers to communicate with the parents, whose teletype system began clicking in the newly established emergency police headquarters on the estate and police squad cars and motorcycles roared forth.

A man telephoned Colonel Lindbergh from Long Branch, N. J., asking if the kidnapers would be granted immunity. The teletype system began clicking in the newly established emergency police headquarters on the estate and police squad cars and motorcycles roared forth.

A man was taken into custody who said he was merely taking a friendly interest in the kidnapping case. But this and that in this era of multi-winged rumors caused a report to be born that Colonel Lindbergh was willing to agree not to press prosecution against the kidnapers if his son was returned safely.

While police and state troopers were silent as to this "immunity" angle they admitted they were willing to "go along" with the Colonel in any arrangement he might make to recover his child.

The "no man's land" around the Lindbergh homestead continued today. Even stricter rules were in force regarding the gathering and parking of automobiles near the entrance to the estate. Machines were kept moving for a couple of miles in each direction.

Under these conditions possibly a messenger of the kidnapers might walk untouched toward the "white house" on the hill. But the welcome one did not come, only the mail man with a continued stream of letters of sympathy, suggestions and the unwanted "crank" missives.

Three long nights and part of a day have passed since 20-months-old Charles Augustus Lindbergh, Jr., was stolen from his nursery crib in his teddy-bear sleeping suit.

Since then, the hopes of Colonel and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh, the tortured parents, have risen and fallen, like sweet and bitter heart beats.

A thousand clues have proved futile. Authorities admit they are "up against a stone wall."

The Lindberghs are anxious—eager—pleadingly anxious—to pay the ransom sum demanded by the baby stealers.

But how—when—where?

They have not heard from the kidnapers—or at least among the thousands of notes, letters and communications received they are unable to tell the spurious ones from the one letter they are waiting for.

The famous aviator-father wears his habitual mask of calmness—but beneath he is worried today.

The condition of Mrs. Anne Morrow Lindbergh is that of any mother whose only babe has been taken from her. Reflecting the attitude of mind of the Lindbergh household, a plea to the kidnapers was broadcast over national radio systems.

ACQUIT LOMBARDO OF CHICKEN STEALING

Judge Keller Orders Jury To Acquit Man of The Charge

DECIDE BIGAMY CASE

DOYLESTOWN, Mar. 4.—Judge Keller directed a jury to acquit John Lombardo, of 519 Pond street, Bristol, charged with stealing eight chickens and a turkey from John Bruce, of Emille. The Commonwealth presented circumstantial evidence tending to show that automobile tire tread marks leading from a highway to the Bruce chicken house were of the same type and design as the tires on Lombardo's car.

"The public does not favor common law marriages, and the Court can see no good reason why you should not have openly married your alleged common law wife," said Judge Keller. S. Boyer, who represented Horace L. Fretz, of Reverse, when a jury returned a verdict of not guilty against his wife, Marjory Fretz, charged with bigamy.

Fretz, the prosecutor was sentenced to pay the costs of prosecution. He was represented by John L. DuBois, who served as counsel for the Commonwealth.

Marjory Fretz, the defendant, who took the stand, denied ever having gone into any sort of a marriage, private or public, with Horace L. Fretz. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Hoffman testified that at various times their daughter asked Mr. Fretz to marry her, but that he always evaded the question and gave no logical reason for his procrastination.

Denying that she and Mr. Fretz ever occupied the same rooms, Marjory Fretz stated that she served as his housekeeper and was supposed to be paid $5 a week for her services while in his home.

Attempting to show that while in his home she never objected to her name being used as Marjory Fretz, wife of Horace L. Fretz, Mr. DuBois offered in evidence a life insurance policy in which the beneficiary, who was Marjory Fretz, bore the name of his alleged common law wife. She also admitted under cross-examination that she used an automobile operator's license bearing the name and her signature as Marjory Fretz.

Witnesses who were recalled for rebuttal included, Mr. and Mrs. Diehl and Mr. and Mrs. Meyers all of whom testified that they had either been guests in the Fretz home or entertained them in their homes as husband and wife.

According to the Court, the verdict was justified on the grounds that Mr. Fretz, who was three times the young girl's senior at the time of her seduction and marriage, was responsible for her misconduct. "You, as an older man, should have known better," Judge Boyer concluded.

The conclusion of this trial marked the close of this session of Criminal Court.

Two Glenside brothers, both married, pleaded guilty Tuesday afternoon in criminal court before President Judge Hiram H. Keller to a charge of stealing chickens from an aunt and uncle in Bucks county so they could sell them to get money to buy coal and food for their families.

Harold Phillips, 21, and his brother, Roy Phillips, 18, were the two defendants who, after the testimony had been presented, were released on a prison sentence and placed on probation for a period of two years. They stole chickens from Richard Naylor, of near New Hope, and from the farm of Flavie Preece, near Holbrook.

SACRED AFRICAN LILY AT DOYLESTOWN 7 FT. HIGH

Flower Measures Three Feet in Length; Stem Thick
as Wrist

IS OWNED BY THE BECKS'

DOYLESTOWN, Mar. 4.—Imagine a gorgeously colored lily whose flower is at least three feet in length, standing on a stem the thickness of a woman's wrist, the top of the plant standing seven feet from the floor—and you have some idea of an unusual Sacred African Lily that can be seen now at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Beck, 193 East Oakland avenue.

There are other lilies of this variety in the community, it is said, but even the famed one pictured in the Literary Digest was only five feet in height. The main part of the lily is about two feet in length and 15 inches across at the widest part. This part is a deep pink inside and pink and green, mottled with white on the outside. From the center of the main-lily shoots what looks like a huge tongue, probably 4 inches in circumference that extends over a foot above the main lily. This part is a deep maroon in color.

Rev. S. Brooks Knowlton Addresses Exchange Club

The Rev. S. Brooks Knowlton, pastor of the Bristol Presbyterian Church, delivered a most interesting address to the members of the Bristol Exchange Club, at their regular weekly meeting, held in the Elks' Home last evening.

The subject of his address was Puritanism, Calvinism and Capitalism. He showed a thorough familiarity with the subject, and presented his address in a manner that was most pleasing and entertaining to all present.

In reply to a question, as to whether the old fashioned doctrine of predestination had sprung from Calvin's advocacy of the "Divine Rights of Kings," he said, "No, that his doctrine of the Divine Right of Kings referred more particularly to the office and not the individual, and that his doctrine of predestination was in no way associated therewith." He said that Calvin was inconsistent with regard to his doctrine of predestination, sometimes defending it and at other times preaching the doctrine of "free will."

From an educational and instructive viewpoint his address was a wonderful exposition of those times, when Puritanism, Calvinism and Capitalism, found their beginnings.

Search New Hope Area For the Lindbergh Baby

Search for the Lindbergh baby goes on in Bucks County and officers are not in the least relaxing their efforts to find the child if in this section.

Pennsylvania State Police requested two guides from Dr. John A. Flood, Burgess of New Hope, and then started off to comb the backwoods and mountain cabins in that section in quest of the kidnapers of Colonel Lindbergh's baby.

"Routine business" was the only comment they offered for their request.

Dr. Flood procured the services of Albert Scarborough and his nephew, William Scarborough, fishermen of New Hope.

One guide went with Sergeant Davis and his men, and the other guide escorted Troopers Toey and Riley.

The officials plan to cover all ground in Bucks County between Washington Crossing and Point Pleasant in compliance with orders from Harrisburg that "undivided attention" be given the quest.

The section in and about New Hope abounds with many hunters' cabins and shacks while several bridges in this vicinity afford easy access from New Jersey into Pennsylvania.

RALPH CROWELL TAKES LEADERSHIP OF GRANGE

Installed at Session of Lower
Bucks and Phila.
Pomona

MEET IN LANGHORNE

LANGHORNE, Mar. 4.—Middletown Grange, 684, was host Wednesday to Lower Bucks and Philadelphia Pomona Grange, 22; at two sessions and a luncheon in the Memorial House, here.

Installation of officers who were elected in December, marked the afternoon meeting. Those installed by State Deputy Isaac Gross, of Plumsteadville, and his assistants, were:

Master, Ralph T. Crowell, of Tyro Hall Grange; overseer, B. P. Tomlinson, of Pineville; chaplain, Florence Dyer, Bustleton; lecturer, Mrs. Hannah Pickering, of Middletown Grange; steward, Clarence H. Smith, Pineville; assistant stewards, Mrs. Anna Thompson and Joseph Smith; treasurer, Jesse G. Webster, Hulmeville; secretary, Margaret R. Slack, Forest Grove; Ceres, Mrs. Edward Harding, Philadelphia; Pomona, Frances Walton, Carversville; Flora, Rachel Austin, Middletown.

Interesting discussions were entered into, and the two meetings thoroughly enjoyed by the 125 attending. Henry Pickering, master, presided prior to installation.

During the morning session the Pomona accepted an invitation of the Pineville Grange to be its guest at the Spring meeting on Wednesday, June 1.

An account of the recent meeting of the State Grange in DuBois was given by the retiring master, Henry C. Pickering, Middletown Grange. Twelve hundred delegates attended the sessions and with one exception, all subordinate Granges of Lower Bucks and Phila. Pomona were represented at the State gathering. Mr. Pickering spoke of two Bucks county Grangers who received the golden sheaf certificate in recognition of having been affiliated with the Grange for more than half a century. Among these two persons was Mrs. Rebecca Tomlinson, a member of Middletown Grange.

In attendance at Wednesday's gathering were a number of members of Upper Bucks Pomona, No. 50, and among them was the recently installed master, Elmer R. Stover, Keller's Church, who went into details with the officers of Lower Bucks and Phila. Pomona in reference to organizing a Bucks county taxpayers' association. Both Pomona feel that the farmers are bearing too heavy a burden of the taxes and that the taxes should be distributed more equally. It was pointed out that any persons, whether or not affiliated with the Grange, may become a member of the organization.

Turning over the gavel to his successor, the retiring master, Henry C. Pickering, expressed appreciation of the cooperation of the subordinate Granges when he was master and wished for the success of Pomona under the guidance of Mr. Crowell.

In accepting the gavel, Mr. Crowell asked for the continued co-operation of the subordinate Granges and said he would like to add to the Grange motto two words, "Ever Onward." He urged the master of the various subordinate Granges to encourage greater attendance and to increase the membership, but at the same time to keep the old members interested and active.

Mr. Crowell pledged his support to the Pomona Grange and asked for the support of the subordinate Granges not only for himself, but for the new lecturer, Mrs. Hannah G. C. Pickering, who succeeds Mrs. Emma F. Paxson, of Carversville. Mr. Crowell explained that the Pomona Grange is an important connecting link between the State body and the subordinate Granges.

Owing to the fact that the greater portion of the day was given over to the installation of officers and other (Continued on Page 3)

ARREST SUSPECT WHO MAY HAVE CRACKED SAFE HERE

Samuel Mascarello, 19, Tienton, Taken by Morrisville Police

TWO ROBBERIES THERE

Post Office and Railroad Station Were Both Entered

A suspect has been taken into custody in the attempted robbery of the Bristol post office and the blowing of the safe at the Pennsylvania Railroad Station at Morrisville.

The man under arrest gives the name of Samuel Mascarello, 19, of 523 Brunswick avenue, Trenton, N. J. He is being held by Morrisville police in connection with the robbery of the P. R. R. safe there on Wednesday night and it is thought that perhaps he knows something about the attempt to crack the post office safe here early last Saturday morning.

Mascarello was arrested after William Wyland, Rochester, N. Y., said his picture at Trenton police headquarters resembled a man whom he had seen near the Morrisville P. R. R. station a few hours before the robbery occurred.

Police will also question Mascarello concerning the attempt to crack the post office safe here. It is believed the same thieves were implicated in both jobs.

The Morrisville safe was robbed of $13.75.

A few nights ago the Morrisville post office was also robbed of a small sum.

Last Saturday morning a hold attempt was made to crack the post office safe here but the crackmen were driven away by neighbors and the fact that the safe was equipped with tear gas which drove them from the building.

DAUGHTER'S PASTIME

"By the Stroller"

Roller skating by children on the streets and highways continues despite the danger involved and the numerous warnings which have been issued.

Children are today playing in the streets more than ever before and it is not to be wondered at, when one takes into consideration the smooth surface of the highways in comparison with the rough surface of a majority of the pavements.

But it is a very dangerous thing for children to play in the highways with traffic as heavy as it is through Bristol and along the Bristol Pike.

Many have ventured to predict that some youngster is going to meet with a fatal accident, unless the practice ceases.

The Rotary Club, it is said, is considering the advisability of suggesting to the borough authorities, that certain sections of certain streets be roped off as a skating place for the youngsters. This is being done in a number of the cities and is working out very satisfactorily.

TAXING INSURANCE

It is not generally known that the respective states collect in taxes part of the premiums paid by those who insure their lives or their property. Every person who buys insurance is helping support his state government.

Eight years ago the total amount collected in taxation from insurance companies was $67,731,000. Last year it passed the hundred million mark.

This heavy levy against insurance premiums is not in accord with the conclusion of the United States Chamber of Commerce to the effect that the tax should produce no income in excess of the actual cost of state supervision of the insurance business. The cost of maintaining all the insurance departments is only $4,500,000 a year.

In theory the insurance department was created for the protection of insurance policyholders and the insurance tax was levied to pay for that protection. In reality those departments, through the tax burden they create, are a burden upon every insurance buyer.

These taxes have not annoyed the general public because they are not levied directly upon the real taxpayer, who is the insured. It is in realization of that fact that the United States Chamber of Commerce periodically calls public attention to this penalty against the thrift and vision of the insurance owner. It is not a tax against rich corporations, but against the insured, who must pay higher premiums because of it.

Although the great majority of voters are policyholders, there will be no tax relief from this direction until the lawmakers become conscious of a wide public resentment.

UTILIZING JUNKED CARS

Every section of the country cursed with unsightly "automobile graveyards"—and what section isn't?—finds cause for rejoicing in the report that the Ford Motor Company has a plan for buying up discarded automobiles to melt down their metal parts for reclamation in its steel plants.

Such conversion of material offers a partial solution of the problem created by the ever-growing piles of broken motor cars and trucks. In time, with efficient methods, the reclaimers may be able to pay enough for outmoded automobiles to clear the roads of machines so antiquated as to be menaces to traffic, and to clear the roadsides of scars caused by the location of "graveyards" within sight of main highways. Today such machines have a junk value only for their nonferrous metals—aluminum, copper and brass.

When rubber prices soared a few years ago a similar program of reclamation was instituted for the rubber in old tires, which, when mixed with fresh gum rubber, was molded into new tires of fair quality. Reclaimed rubber still is in demand, particularly for the manufacture of hard rubber products, and the heaps of worn automobile tires that once littered the landscape have disappeared. A similar fate for old automobiles would be a scenic as well as an economic blessing.

SYNOPSIS

Bob Harkness, one of the most respected ranchers on the Mexican border, is "El Coyote," the masked bandit, who has avenged the wrongs inflicted upon the peons by Paco Morales. Ted Radcliffe, the son of Bob's dead friend, Ann Reed, an entertainer at a disreputable resort, and Dr. Price are the only ones who know "El Coyote's" identity. Morales would pay well for this information and, not knowing that Ann loves "El Coyote" and is his spy, asks her to secure it. He also employs her to entangle Ted and kill his beautiful niece, Adela's love for the American. Ann goes to warn Bob and brings Ted the news that a large tract of land controlled by Morales rightfully belongs to him. Back in her room, Ann tells Ted of Morales' proposed trap.

CHAPTER XLIII

A light knock sounded on the door. He heard her little start of surprise, and saw her bare arm and shoulder as she pulled the tapestry aside. "Quien es?" she called.

For answer the door swung slowly open. With a choked cry Ted started to his feet. There at the doorway stood Morales, his face twisted in an exultant smile, and at his elbow was Adela. For a moment their eyes took in the picture, the man standing by the chair, and behind him, clutching the tapestry, that half-clothed figure of the girl that all the border knew as Ann Reed.

Very deliberately Morales spoke. "A thousand pardons. I had hoped to have my niece meet the charming singer. It would seem she is—pleasantly occupied."

As the door swung closed, Ted leaped forward, but the girl flung her arms about him.

"Not now," she pleaded, while her hands held him back. "You mustn't give her a chance to say something she can't recall. Give her time to think. Wait until you're calm. Then go to her."

In Ted's brain was still the memory of Adela's eyes, and for a mad moment his hands twisted with blind rage. Roughly he unwound the girl's arms, and left the room.

Downstairs he ran through the long patio, then out into the night. Adela was nowhere. He searched inside the gaming hall, passed down the line of tables, then hurried into the patio again.

Mendoza stood looking down the road.

"The señor seeks someone?"

"Paco Morales."

—Señor Morales and his lovely niece? Mendoza looked up at the big, grim-faced man and added in mild surprise. "She was weeping, the poor little lady—weeping on such an exquisite night of spring!"

As Ted swept down the long aisle between the tables Bob looked up. Something in the man's quick tread warned him of impending trouble, for never before had his face been so stern, the eyes so deadly. And his voice, as he told Bob what had happened upstairs, held a pent-up fury even more menacing than his eyes. Bob sat for a long moment in thought. At last he said: "I'm inclined to agree with Price that the old Spaniard is just a little mad. How he must have hurt Adela!"

"I can't forget her eyes—they weren't accusing—they weren't even questioning—they were only terribly sad." Ted raised a clenched hand and the square line of his jaw set. "Morales wants open war—now, by God, he'll have it."

"Softly, old son."

"Softly! I've walked softly long enough. To hell with more sidestepping." Ted burst out. "I'm fed up with smiles and words. Oh, it's all clear enough! He wants me out of this country and out of Adela's heart. And if he has to—he'll kill." Ted looked about him. "I could do a little killing myself tonight."

Bob rose. "I think, old fellow, we'd better be going. Jito and his gang are out in the bar—we don't want any trouble."

Once again Ted's jaw set. "Ever since I came here I've been avoiding trouble with Morales and his vaqueros. Tonight it's their turn to step aside."

After a moment's hesitation Bob shrugged and dropped back into his chair. They sat in silence, their unseeing eyes fixed before them, while about them the music swayed and dancers passed and repassed, looking down curiously on the two grim-faced men.

Then, as Bob turned to break the black silence, a waiter hurried to their table and leaned over Ted's shoulder.

"Señor, Jito gives you his message from the bar. He hopes you will join him in a drink when you are no longer engaged upstairs."

The insolence of that challenge stung Ted to instant action. He jumped to his feet, upsetting the little table. His eyes became narrow, bloodshot slits, but his voice was calm. "Come," he said to Bob. "I am accepting Jito's invitation—and God help one of us tonight."

Just outside the door that led into the long bar of Mendoza's, the two men stopped. All bedlam had broken loose in there, and above the chorus of shouts rose the crash of splintered wood, then the silvery shattering of glasses. The thud of a heavy body followed, and the roar of voices redoubled. Bob loosened the top button of his shirt. Then he opened the door.

In sharp contrast to the darkened patio, the white lights of the mirrored barroom for a moment dazzled their eyes. Lined up before the bar twenty or more sombreroed Mexican vaqueros stood, quirts hanging loose at their belts, roweled spurs biting into the wooden floor. A table toward the lower end of the bar had overturned, and bottles and glasses were scattered about it, but it was toward the upper end that the eyes of the vaqueros led. The crowd had drawn back to the wall, leaving a space of oak floor empty, and here, in the center, lay one of Mendoza's waiters. Above him, leaning over, was the huge, bent figure of a cowboy, and as he raised his dark face, Ted recognized Jito. An ugly grimace played about the Mexican's mouth. He seemed to be turning over in that slow brain of his what next to do to the prostrate form before him.

"Throw him out, Jito," laughed a little vaquero. "Teach him not to interfere with caballeros."

Again the air was filled with cries and oaths, while his men urged Jito on. The big Mexican stooped, picked up the waiter, carried him to the door and, raising him high above his head, hurled the man into the darkness. A storm of laughter and applause arose, but suddenly, as Jito turned back, all voices ceased, and in that sudden silence one might have heard the beating of his own heart.

For Jito had caught sight of Ted standing in the doorway, and across the giant vaquero's face came a look that brought every man to silent immobility and made more than one reach to see if his knife was sheathed by his side. Throughout the room that sudden deadly silence fell, so still the dripping of an overturned bottle sounded down the long length of the room, where a moment before all had been an orgy of noise. There was no mistaking the message in Jito's eyes. In Ted's wrists the blood tingled, and he smiled as he sensed at last the breaking of that long-awaited storm.

To Don Bob, too, as he stood there, flashed the thought that now before them the inevitable clash was at hand. The desert was not wide enough for those two men. Ted felt Bob's hand close quietly about his arm, and a whispered voice said, "Wait."

Step by step the great-shouldered vaquero came on. It was like the advance of a grizzly, leisurely, triumphant, gloating, and irresistible, as if he knew that time meant nothing, and that the end was sure. Almost within arm's length of Ted the Mexican stopped, so near that Radcliffe could see the bloodshot eyes, and the little beads of sweat that stood out on the dark forehead. Jito swept low his broad sombrero in a gesture of ironic welcome.

Sacred African Lily At

Doylestown 7 Ft. High

Mrs. Beck has a number of the lily bulbs, but says that they rarely bloom under six years. Before that they are merely tree-like in their growth.

In the Fall the bulbs are cleaned of all earth, wrapped up and placed in the cellar. About the first of February they are put into a pot, without earth, and given no moisture—and then their rapid growth begins. Overnight as much as two-and-a-half inches of growth has been measured.

Their bulbs increase much like a dahlia's.

It has taken the present seven feet tall plant about three weeks to reach its present development which has been observed by scores of persons who have called at the Beck residence where it is now growing in a heated enclosed porch, although up to a day or two ago it was inside. It was removed from the main residence when the objectionable scent began to become noticeable.

The flower is shaped much like the calla lily.

GEORGE WASHINGTON'S TRAVELS

DURING THE EARLY YEARS OF THE REVOLUTION, SERIOUS TROUBLE WAS CAUSED BY INDIANS ON THE FRONTIER. THAT THE BRITISH WERE BACK OF THEM WASHINGTON WELL KNEW. IN THE SPRING OF 1779, GENERAL SULLIVAN PLUNGED INTO THE INDIAN COUNTRY UNDER WASHINGTON'S ORDERS AND LAID WASTE TO MANY LARGE INDIAN TOWNS. THE EXPEDITION WAS A COMPLETE SUCCESS. IT WILL BE RECALLED THAT WASHINGTON WAS FAMILIAR WITH THE INDIAN CHARACTER.

WASHINGTON NEEDED A FORT AT STONY POINT AND ASKED ANTHONY WAYNE TO CAPTURE IT. IN JULY 1779 WAYNE CHARGED UP THE HILL IN ONE OF THE MOST SEVERE HAND TO HAND ENCOUNTERS OF THE WAR. WAYNE, ALTHOUGH WOUNDED, LED THE CHARGE. FOR THIS AND OTHER DEEDS OF DARING HE WAS GIVEN THE NAME OF "MAD ANTHONY." THE WINTER OF 1779 AND 1780 FOUND WASHINGTON AT MORRISTOWN, NEW JERSEY.

Shutters and bars were taken down from hundreds of shops and stores along Nanking Road, Shanghai's shopping district, and the city in other ways began to resume its normal appearance.

Foreign observers saw little hope for a permanent end of fighting as a result of negotiations under way at present. It was understood there were no peace parleys being conducted today, but Japan's latest proposals, as stated at discussions yesterday, were entirely unacceptable to the Chinese, they said. The proposals, in brief were:

1. A renewed demand for total eradication of anti-Japanese boycott organizations.

2. Perpetual demilitarization of the Shanghai area.

3. Permanent dismantling of the Chinese forts at the mouths of the Whangpoo and Yangtze rivers (this included the Hoosung forts).

"YEAR OF GRACE"—'32' IS SLOGAN NOW OUT FOR NEW FASHIONS

Most of Designers Are Shortening Skirts for Street Wear

By ALICE LANGELLIER

(Staff Correspondent L. N. S.) PARIS—The spring silhouette is supplied with a most generous upper half, with very strong emphasis on broad shoulders, elaborate and complicated sleeves, capelets, drop-shoulder effects and a higher waist-line.

The length of the skirt is still open to discussion while the season is yet young. Most of the designers are shortening skirts for street wear, but a few of them are lengthening them or leaving them as they were this past season. But the difference in both is scarcely worth quarrelling about.

The same division appears for more formal wear in the appearance of a new type of evening ensemble with skirts which do not reach the floor by six or eight inches, as opposed to the regulation ankle-length.

In any event, the generally-accepted, closely-fitted skirt to the knees and then flaring from there on, is the rule, although still another new line is achieved by a skirt movement that tucks several inches above the hem. This line is accentuated by an openwork treatment or narrow band of shirring.

The Lelong silhouette this season is not the single fixed line. "1932—a year of grace" is this dressmaker's slogan and everything he is showing is delightfully graceful. In some cases there are slim, restrained body lines and much sleeve emphasis. Waistlines are never exaggerated, mostly normal in place, and hemlines are varied according to the garment.

Slim-drape and gore effects that make a flattering line on all figures are the feature of another French fashion-maker.

Modern MAGIC

TINY LAMPS flashed; flying fingers enlivened the telephone switchboard.

Idling in the hotel lobby, Tom Means watched, fascinated. Marvelous, this telephone service—a hundred miles in split seconds—modern magic. Then a thought struck him. Why not call home? Sue would be thrilled—it wouldn't cost much.

Casually he gave the number. "Booth number three," said the operator crisply. Means picked up the receiver—heard his wife's voice. And this was the wonder of it, her first words were: "Tom, you dear, I knew you wouldn't forget! Our first wedding anniversary you've spent away from home!"

room on the night of the kidnapping asked for $50,000.

"It specified that the bids were to be in denominations of one, two, five, ten and twenty dollars. It said that the baby would be well taken care of. "It was signed with three pen pricks in the paper.

"There were no directions as to how the ransom should be paid and there was no time limit specified."

John J. Toohey, secretary to Governor A. Harry Moore, denied that he had given out the contents of the ransom note.

Among the horde of "crank" letters there were several on hand today which were considered of possible importance.

A postcard, intercepted at Auburn, N. Y., was addressed to Colonel Lindbergh and read:

"Baby taken good care of. Look for instructions Saturday. If police get too close, watch out."

Another post card mailed to Colonel Lindbergh from South Orange, N. J., read:

"Baby will die."

This card resembled a previous postcard mailed the Colonel from Newark, N. J., last Wednesday.

Both cards were printed in pencil. Both were addressed: "Charles Lindbergh."

Another missive was mailed from New York and referred to the fate of Frances St. John Smith, who disappeared from Smith College in January, 1928. Her body was found a year later in the Connecticut River. She was said to have committed suicide.

CAGE CHAMPION TILT GOES INTO DEADLOCK

(By T. M. Jann)

Despite a belated rally by the Shamrocks, the play-off for the championship of the A. O. H. Basketball League went into a deadlock last night as the Gaels put on their scoring caps and beat the first half champions. The final tabulations read: Gaels, 38; Shamrocks, 27.

The last ditch rally by the Shamrocks swept the Gaels right off their feet when it seemed as if it was all over. At the time the "Shamies" were trailing by ten points with but three minutes remaining to be played. After a time-out was called the Shamrocks went to work and in forty-five seconds managed to score three field goals and come within two points of the Gaels' lead. However, the Gaels' defense tightened up until the game was over.

The Gaels held the edge throughout the entire game and up until the belated rally never were in danger of losing the game. "Nex" McGinley, Angie McCafferty and "Eddie" Roe were their leaders in the offense with L. Mulligan, J. Mulligan and Connors, placing all their time on the defense. Rodgers and Dougherty were the losers' best.

McGinley inaugurated the scoring of the evening by sinking a foul shot to give the Gaels a 1-0 lead. Dougherty was fouled and scored the points, tying the count. Receiving a pass from L. Mulligan, Roe scored from the side, making the score 3-1. J. Roe fouled E. Roe, who missed the shot. McGinley was fouled by Dugan and the shot was made. A pass from Dougherty to Rodgers was converted into a field goal, bringing the score to 4-3. McGinley then followed with a Gaels' double-decker. Neils missed a foul shot and tapped in the ball, making the count 6-5 in the Gaels' favor. A long pass from McGinley was good for another field goal. Dugan missed a free throw for the Shamrocks. Rodgers missed a free throw. Dougherty received a pass from Dugan and scored the twin-pointer, letting the score read: Gaels, 8; Shamrocks, 7.

Dougherty fouled Roe who made the point. McGinley scored a double-decker and the score was 11-7. Two foul shots by Rodgers brought the count to 11-9. E. Roe scored a gift shot for the Gaels. E. Roe then put one in from the center of the floor. A fast pass, E. Roe to McGinley, netted another double-decker and made the count 16-9. J. Roe took a pass from Dougherty and easily scored. Rodgers had two free throws for the basket and missed both. McGinley scored a point from the fifteen foot mark as the first half ended with the score registering 17-11 in the favor of the Gaels.

Dugan and McGinley missed foul shots as the second half opened. J. Roe scored a long shot for the Shamrocks. Taking a pass from McGinley, Roe scored an easy twin-pointer. E. Roe took McGafferty's rebound off the backboard and hit the sphere in for a double-decker, making the count 21-13. McGafferty added two more to a side shot. Dougherty kept the Shamrocks in by scoring a goal of a scrimmage. McGafferty had no trouble scoring, the score then being 25-15. M. Mulligan missed a foul. Dougherty dribbled the entire length of the floor to score for the Shamrocks. McGafferty took a pass from McGinley and scored. On a tap-off near the basket, E. Roe hit the ball in to make the count 29-17. M. Mulligan scored a single point for the Shamrocks.

McGafferty's field goals gave the Gaels a 31-18 lead. Rodgers scored twice in succession for the Shamrocks. E. Roe on a pass from McGinley netted a Gaels' goal. McGinley was fouled and made the point for the Shamrocks. With the score 34-21 against them, the Shamrocks scored four field goals before the Gaels could score. Dougherty counted two, and Rodgers and Dugan one each. J. Mulligan scored for the Gaels. Rodgers added a field goal to the "Sham." E. Connors scored the last points of the game on a long shot, making the final count, 38-22.

ACES WIN SECOND CONTEST FROM RAMBLERS

As a preliminary to the main game of the evening, the supremacy of the Aces and Ramblers basketball teams was settled when the Aces took the second straight game of the series by the score of 18-15.

The fray was hard-fought from start until finish and featured by a rally by the Aces who trailed by a point or two throughout. The winning field goals were scored by Tentilucci who had just entered the game and Herman, whose brilliant shooting had kept the Aces in the game all night.

For the second consecutive time, the Ramblers were held to three field goals during the entire game although their playing was much more superior than on Monday night when they lost the first of the series.

Herman and Pieo starred for the winners while Spadacino and Tullio were the losers' best. The line-up:
